MEET JULEE

Julee Ireland is a Los Angeles & Austin-based real estate investor, interior design architect, DIY expert, TV host, award-winning author, and influencer. She is also the creator and founder of the "Home Renovation School" where she teaches you how to design, build, and renovate your dream home. And you will want to be on the lookout for the introduction of her product line "Home Renovation Box" set to launch for the 2023 Holiday Season.

Julee's lifelong passion for design led her into earning her degree and working as a fashion designer where she made clothing for some pretty famous people such as "Bill Gates." After moving to Los Angeles she switched gears morphing into a self-taught, renowned interior designer while working for the largest residential home builders in America. To date, she's designed, built, flipped and renovated over 1,000 homes across the United States that range from custom-built homes to full scale renovations. She owns her own Interior Design/Build Firm with projects that span the US. She's also been the lead designer for model homes, home staging, and entire planned communities.

You should know Julee's not your typical designer because she love's to get her hands dirty! In fact, demo day is her favorite day when it comes to renovating her own homes or taking apart something old to make it new again. As a designer & builder, she's knowledgeable and passionate about all aspects of the building process from Architecture to interior design. From framing to plumbing, electrical, lighting and every last detail in between, Julee combines her passion for interior design and helping others with her keen eye for detail to create the home of your dreams.
